>Hi Rhoda:

>I am always very interested in what like minds have to say to each other especially when I do not have any real like minds like mines around me.

>I too am a daily studier and reader of God's Holy Words. His words are truth and life just like the good book reads. I am also a Sabbath keeper. Let me tell you some things about me so that you get the feeling that you know who you are talking too. I hope that you do not get offended with anything that I say. I apologize in advance if I do but the truth is the truth.

>I hope that you are not an SDA (Seventh Day Adventist) because they do not have the right image of God in their minds and also pervert the truth. Like so many churches do today. Actually all of them with the exception of the true Church of God. The reason why I am mentioning this is because I use to be an SDA. In my early teens and adulthood I was baptized into the SDA or by the SDA and not many years later had to decided that the SDA was not going to be my church.

>I can still recall trying to tell the Pastor at that time about the things that I was learning and his reply to me was that I should read all the writings of Ellen G. White and understand her teachings before I read literature from other churches. His answer did not satisfy me. Later I learned that Ellen G. White was a false prophet. The Bible teaches us that if a prophet speaks in the name of God then the true prophets words will all come true and not one will fail. Ellen G. White has made many prophecies that had fail. So according to the Bible she is not a true prophet.

>"When a prophet speaketh in the name of the Lord, if the thing follow not, nor come to pass, that is the thing which the Lord hath not spoken but the prophet hath spoken presumptuously thou shalt not be afraid of him"

>- Deut 18 :2 2

>The SDA will not focus on the negatives only on the positives but that is in disregard to God's holy word. Let me give you an example of just one of the things that Mrs. White had prophesied. Keep in mind that she live before, during and after the United States Civil war era which the Civil War was around 1861-64 around that time. Mrs. White had prophesied that at some point in American History, that the British would once again be at war with the United States and that this time they would win and enslave every man woman and child into a life of servitude towards the British Empire. Which Great Britain was a worldwide empire at that time.

>The only mayor war that the USA saw with another nation after the Civil War, if I am not mistaken were the Spanish/American war with Spain for the Island of the Caribbean sea and WWI and II. Of course the USA had fought many other minor wars with the American Indians and even Mexico and also the war of Texas or over Texas but not any other mayor nation at least not from Europe. Britain never came to war with the USA and so that prophecy of Mrs. White never came true. Thus she is a false prophet.

>You can Google search for "Failed Prophecies" on the internet and learn that Mrs. White was a racist as well. She believed that there were human (normal) and then there were "Sub-human" or inferior humans, much like animals that were only mimicking human behavior. She of course was referring to the black man. At that time a "christian" could own a slave and this would be considered like owning a horse or a dog, to them.

>At any rate I came from that church and learned the basic truths about the Sabbath and God's laws from them. What really caused me to leave that church however, was the fact that the Bible does not teach a Sunday morning resurrection. The Bible teaches that by the first day of the week, (Sunday), Jesus Christ had already been risen and walking about. But never does it state that Jesus rose on Sunday. Everyone simply assumes this.

>When I had learned what the Bible really said and how God's word cannot fail and brought this to the attention of the pastor at that time, I was some what ostracized from the SDA. No one really talked to me after that and so eventually I just left. Yet the truth is the truth and there are so many truths in God's word and all of them voided so that "christians" may observe the traditions of men.

>I knew that God was calling me and preparing me for His true Church, The Worldwide Church of God. At least back then it was the true Church of God before Mr. Armstrong died in 1986. Mr. Armstrong trully was a prophet of God. None of His prediction ever failed because they were all from the Bible. Mr. Armstrong predicted that the Berlin wall (constructed in 1961) would one day come down and that Europe would be United into one nation or Super Power. This was right after WWII and the Vietnam wars, when Russia began construction of the Berlin Wall in Germany in 1961. Sure enough, only 28 years later (1989), the Wall had come down and Europe was on the path of emerging into the United States of Europe. Mr. Armstrong made many prophecies like these and they have all come to pass.

>Why before Mr. Armstrong died, He predicted the eventual and almost immediate break up of God's true Church after his death, and today there are literally hundreds of Churches of God world wide. Mr. Wayne for example is from one of the fragmentations of the church of God. And while they all kept the name, "Church of God", they don't all believe the same way. At least Mr. Wayne believes in the Sabbath and the Ten Commandments. That is good; But many of the Churches of God, Including the WCG (Worldwide Church of God) are now Sunday observers and hold no regards for the ten Commandments as do the protestant churches of this world.

>This is who I am and where I am coming from. Again I hope that nothing that I have said here offends you but if you are a SDA you may very well take offense because I am stating for the record that the SDA is not a true Christian Church. No Protestant church of this world is in fact a true Church but the tribulation yet to come will sort it all out. For when one is willing to die for our Lord and Savior who died for us and we have no shame to speak of what we know is truth according to God's word, then we may very well end up in that coming persecution on the side of the Lord facing martyrdom and death at the hands of so called "christians."

>For if we do not die in this tribulation which is already upon us but live through this tribulation; As many shall die in the world in the billions in the next few years, unlike anything that we have ever seen before on this planet soon, and if we live through it and have 'not' repented of our sins, then we shall surely find ourselves on the side of false "christianity" persecuting and murdering True Christians in the name of the 'father' before the great and terrible day of the Lord. For it will be a terrible day for all those who do not repent of their sins and turn to God and to Jesus in Spirit and in Truth.

>"And then shall that Wicked be revealed, whom the Lord shall consume with the spirit of his mouth, and shall destroy with the brightness of his coming:"

>-2 Thessalonians 2:8

>Yes, it will be a very terrible day for many when our Lord arrives and all falsities and false churches and preachers will be revealed to their destruction and eternal shame. When also Christ says to them, "I never knew ye, depart from me thou worker of iniquity!" Ouch! You just know that is going to hurt mainstream christians who have no regards for God's laws and His Holidays. Anyways; Enough about that. That is just a taste of who I am and what I believe so that you may know me a bit better.

>Now I would be very grateful to discuss with you more on the topics of God's word. But I honestly do enough reading on my own. I would really like to just talk to some one even if by email or even snail-mail as I really do not have anyone in my life at the present with whom too talk to or with. So perhaps if you are up to it we can drag on a conversation and at the same time get to know each other better.

>I am not a Grandpa and I have never been married but I am an Uncle. In name only because my sister lives in Chicago with her 2 kids. They are practically all grown up now. I missed their growing up years but it was probably for the best. At the time I had a serious problem with Alcoholism and drugs. Not now though, Not for the past five years or so, since about 2005-6. I can't really remember but it was around that time.

>When I think back, I still can't believe it, I was such garbage in a human glad bag, Lol. I know that now, I would rather die then go back to that life. I would rather live in the streets homeless and hungry, naked and in shame before I return to a life that brought me so much pain. The worst thing is that you don't even realize that you are in pain because you can't really feel anything at all. Not in your heart anyway. Today I have a true relationship with God the Father and Jesus and I know that I will never go back to that because I could not have a true and loving relationship with God and live that life. I am in fact always on the improve according to the will and good graces of God in my life.

>As to the resurrection I know that I will be in that first one when Jesus returns to establish His Kingdom on this earth. Many do not believe in a resurrection but rather believe the lie of satan that when a person dies they go to either heaven or hell. Many "christians" are caught up in that lie of the immortality of the soul and they don't even bother to research the truth because they would rather believe in the lie. For this reason alone they condemn themselves. For it is the responsibility of every called Christian to seek out the Kingdom of God and all of it's righteousness (Matthew 6:33).

>And with all deceivableness of unrighteousness in them that perish; because they received not the love of the truth, that they might be saved. And for this cause God shall send them strong delusion, that they should believe a lie: That they all might be damned who believed not the truth, but had pleasure in unrighteousness.

>-2 Thessalonians 2:10-12

>Yes, Believing in the truth and righteousness go hand in hand and many so called christians of this world will be damned because they have not the wedding garments of the Son of Man, Jesus Christ. They simply do not have the right faith that bringeth salvation but choose instead to stay in the darkness because there no one can see their sins. I choose the truth. I am sorry that I digressed but you will learn that about me. I will be talking about the fact that I am an Uncle and suddenly the Words of God pop up out of no where because they are so much a part of me.

>But I was saying that perhaps it was better for my nephew and niece that they never knew me back then. Besides, one day they will know and my sister also and she will wish that she had gotten to know me better in this life. At least there is always the final judgment for all those who were never called by God in this life. God knows what He is doing (even if I have to suffer it, I will praise Him always).

>But I would really like to hear, from you, what you think about the resurrections and all? But not from any literature, but from You personally, if you have the time and all that is. Until next time...

>Dear friend of like mind,

>I read your e-mail on Daily Bible Study. I am a young great grandma, who has a sweet workaholic husband of 33 years (second marriage). Together we have seven grown kids who have given us 12 grand kids from which has come eight great-grand kids. We have been Sabbath and Holy Day keepers for many years. We came out of a religious organization several years ago to search the Bible for ourselves, and for spiritual freedom to grow. I am the studious one who has studied the Bible for over 40 years. We have bible studies in our house every Sab. morning. I study a subject for several months, then write an article on it. Some have been accepted for publication. Did you ever wonder about something in the bible but never find the answer? After reading Eze. 37 and Rev. 2:5 I had a burning desire to find out "What About the Rest of the Dead," those people who won't make it into the first resurrection, but will be resurrected after the thousand year period?" and after months of studying discovered the Bible is full of information about them. This study goes beyond the resurrection of the whole house of Israel and is absolutely amazing! I also have a larger study about the "Seven Ages of Mankind." This study came about when I was doing a study about the resurrections. I send my studies to any who request them. If you would like one just let me know. I would be more than glad to e-mail one (or more) to you.

>I am anxious to hear from you.

>God's grace to you,
